

Hey voter,

Yes, we're looking at you.

2020 has been the year that feels like a decade. Though a lot of things feel out of your control right now, voting shouldn't be one of them. theSkimm is here to help you cast a ballot. Because your vote is your voice. Here's how this will go:

We attached your absentee ballot request form below and went ahead and added the info you already told us. You're welcome. But check for typos and missing info. Just in case. And if you forget to check a box, you can always do that yourself with black ink once you print and sign your application.

Pro tip: Don't get fancy. Use your standard signature. That's what you probably used to register to vote. And that's the one election officials will compare it to when approving your application. Heads-up: They're supposed to contact you if the two don't match.

Next up: Mail your application to your local election office. Just make sure it's stamped and postmarked by your state's deadline.

Questions? Check out our FAQ page. And sign up here for the Daily Skimm newsletter to get all the news you need to start your day, including special election coverage on 2020 Tuesdays. You can also contact the U.S. Vote Foundation here or your local election office here:

